

Remuda International featuring Paul Rogers

Colt Starting and Problem Solving Class: Introduction to the Art of Feel

- Learn to catch horses in a way that is fitting to the horse.
- Halter and lead your horse in a manner that makes them better to ride.
- Build the horse's confidence by helping them deal with situations that trigger their self preservation instinct.
- Determine if your horse is ready mentally and emotionally to saddle or ride.
- Understand the root of behaviors such as spooking, bucking, bolting, and rearing.
- Get your horse better to trim or shoe.

Intermediate Horsemanship: Understanding the Art of Feel

- Explore feel through the sense of touch.
- Move the horse's body and feet with your fingertips.
- Connect each foot to the halter rope and snaffle bit reins.
- Straightness, engagement, and collection start with the horse's mental acceptance of these principles first.
- Lead changes and flying changes are introduced in a herd setting that imitate the natural impulsion and fluidity of a native setting.
- Learn herd dynamics and create a herd of two.
- Create an environment where the horse would rather be with you than anywhere else.

Molly Morrow Photography

Ride the Mind: The Physiology and Psychology of Riding and Interacting with Your Horse

- Apply global concepts in horsemanship and psychology.
- Manage your emotions - focus your mind.
- Turn your imagination into power.
- Paint a portrait of yourself with body language and physiology.
- Understand the subconscious influence of language.
- Allow the nature of the horse to become more apparent to you.
- Determine how your actions and reactions affect the horse.
- Comprehend the root emotions that cause horse behavior.

Molly Morrow Photography

Advanced Horsemanship: Living Through the Art of Feel

- Achieve straightness by eliminating braces in the horse's body.
- Balance will be acquired by equality of lateral flexion and movement.
- Engagement and collection will be attained by taking the softness in the corners of mouth to the poll, then letting that energy of softness flow through the neck, body, legs, and feet to the mind.
- Develop your sixth sense and intertwine it with your horse.
- Ride blindfolded to gain trust and confidence in the spirit of the horse.

Cow Working and Rodeo Ranch Roping

- Handling and roping cattle from the pasture to the arena.
- Learn to read, rate, and score cattle.
- Fix roping box problems.
- Build foundations for cutting and working cow.
- Slick horn or rubber, this class is a mixture of Vaquero and timed event styles.

Angelika Dietrich